AFRICAN SCIENTIFIC INSTITUTE CONFERS FELLOWSHIP ON BOYINBODE

Dr. (Mrs.) Olutayo Kehinde Boyinbode of the University's Computer Science Department has been named Fellow of the African Scientific Institute (AIS) alongside 12 other Nigerians. The Fellowship honours the accomplishments of spectacular individuals and provides a platform on which they can contribute and grow. Boyinbode, the International honorary recipient is now part of a think tank producing new ideas and resources for other Fellows and their projects.

The African Scientific Institute (AIS) is an International Honorary Association of accomplished individuals in the area of science and technology. The primary objective of AIS Fellows is to recognize the achievement of excellence of each Fellow in his/her field of expertise, particularly in the academia, business and research at Institutions and organizations around the world.
