Hall Wardens, Porters Play Critical Roles – Registrar

Wardens and Porters in halls of residence have been told to redouble their efforts and work conscientiously in order to discharge their responsibilities creditably.

The Registrar, Dr. Mrs Modupe Ajayi, made the appeal at this year's halls of residence welfare day. The Registrar who was represented by Mr. Ade Fafila promised that the University will continue to support them to enhance their productivity. She described hall wardens and porters as major stakeholders in the administration of the university because they have direct contact with students.

In his opening remark, the Acting Dean of Students, Dr. Kayode Alese urged them to see their job as a calling and not a meal ticket. While urging them to be more dedicated in the coming year, the Dean of Students said the Vice-Chancellor has approved the promotion of those of them who have spent four years and above on the same level.

The Coordinator of the programme and also Senior Assistant Registrar (Guidance & Counseling) Students Affairs, Mrs B. A. Owele said the occasion was to allow staff take time out to relax, after working conscientiously for the past one year. She said the event was also put together to foster team spirit for effective service delivery and also to ensure good working relationship with colleagues and superiors.
